

Paul Stacey Bio

Paul Stacey is the Director of Development for BCcampus in Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada. BCcampus is a collaboration of the province's higher education sector to provide learners online portal access to courses, programs, services, and resources. Prior to BCcampus Paul was responsible for business development at Simon Fraser University's eLearning Innovation Centre.

Paul has helped create a new online university with high tech degree programs and worked in the private sector for Hughes Aircraft managing development and delivery of large scale, mission critical training programs for international customers of Hughes' air traffic control systems.

Paul is active locally on the Board of Directors for eLearningBC, a marketing and business alliance of British Columbia e-learning companies. Nationally, Paul is a regular participant in Canadian e-learning research programs.

Paul has a public profile as an e-learning advocate through his monthly E-Learning column http://www.bctechnology.com/statics/ps\_archive.html, and as Host and Producer of international online communities and webcasts with LearningTimes <http://www.learningtimes.net>.