Dr. Iain Barton
Managing Director
Imperial Health Sciences

Imperial acquired the Health Sciences businesses of RTT in 2013. Iain Barton joined the group in 2000 as Strategic Director, before moving to the healthcare division as CEO in 2005. On assuming the Group CEO role in 2010, Iain led the unbundling of the specialized healthcare operations across Africa and their acquisition by Imperial in 2013.

With ten years in medical practice and more than a decade in healthcare supply chain management, Iain's unique skill set matches Imperial's core values of international standard service and customer focus. In addition, Iain's experience in Development Aid strategy and specifically his involvement in the planning and operations of the supply chain management system (SCMS) for the US Government's PEPFAR initiative, provide a secure foundation for IHS's African business development plans.

Heading Africa's leading healthcare supply chain partner, Iain's professional standards and industry understanding are showing dividends in business growth, service integrity and client loyalty for Imperial.
