If we provide opportunities to women, they will grab them with both hands and have a huge impact not only for them, but also for their families, their communities, and the country as a whole.

Dennis Meone, CEO
Solomon Islands Chamber of Commerce

Fifteen of the largest companies in Solomon Islands are pioneering measures to promote gender equality in the workplace. Through the Waka Mere Commitment to Action, they work toward at least one of three goals: promote more women in leadership, build respectful and supportive workplaces, and increase opportunities for women in jobs traditionally held by men. Both companies and employees have already started to see the benefits.
